Mr. Turvin,

I am a music theatre student currently studying at ASU. I also saw Company at Tempe Little Theatre on June 10, and I wanted to tell you how dead on I thought your review was. I also was not blown away by the performances, but you described them perfectly in their earnestness and that made the show very likeable. Anyone who is aware of Sondheim knows that all his shows are not easy to put on especially for community theatres. But, there were many things that made TLT's production subtly charming.

So from one Sondheim lover to another, I give you kudos on your critique.

Also, I wanted to know how much I enjoy your website and reviews. Everytime I see a show in the valley I hurry on to see what you thought of it, because, though some people may not like all of your reviews, in my eyes they have always been truthful and poignant, just like a good criticism should be.

I look forward to soon doing a show that you review, and taking your criticism to improve.

You don't have to post this unless you want to.

Sincerely

Brad Rupp
